

KRAMASAMDHANA-SIKṢĀ

with commentary

The kramasāmdhāna-sikṣā enumerates 115 cases found in the mādhyandina-krapapāṭha in which krama continues in spite of avasānas (pauses) in the mantras of the saṁhitā. The krama combination of two sequential words in the padapāṭha in which the first word is placed before the avasāna is called kramasāmdhāna. In all other cases krama ends at the avasāna. This is shown by the repetition of the last word before the avasāna with an interposed iti.

yathā samāmnātaṁ kramāvasānaṁ saṅkrameṣu | kramaśāstrānusāreṇa sandhānaṁ
procyate 'dhunā 1

In case of saṅkramas (in which the first word is placed before an avasāna) the end of krama takes place at the next avasāna in the saṁhitā. Following the kramaśāstras this saṅkrama is now called saṁdhāna.

The first part quotes śukla-yajurveda-prātiśākhya 4.194. This sutra is an exception to 4.193 (avasāne ca) which says that the word before the avasāna should be repeated with an interposed iti. This is the usual end of krama.

In the following kaṇḍikās or mantras of the mādhyandina-vājasaneyi-saṁhitā the two words of each kramasāmdhāna are shown in red color. Other words seen in between these two words (shown in green color) are dropped in the padapāṭha because of repetition. Such dropped words are called galita padas. Other galita padas are not shown in green color.

Kaṇḍikā 1.19 has interior avasānas but not an final avasāna indicated in the transliterated text by %. To show in the saṃhitā that 1.19 has to be combined with 1.20 the first two words of 1.20 (dhānyamasi) are added. In the padapāṭha 1.19 and 1.20 are separate and dhānyamasi is not added to 1.19. Probably for this reason this kramasaṃdhāna has been mentioned.
